FAIR FLORA REIGNED.

The Fragrance of Flowers Filled the Exposition Building

MUCH TO THE DELIGHT OF WOMEN.

A Wedding Canopy and Reception Room of Flowers and Plants.

THE DISPLAY WILL CONTINUE TO-DAY

Flora reigned supreme at the Exposition yesterday. It was flower day, and the fair goddess numbered her votaries by the thousand. All through the day and evening the foyer of the main building, which has been set apart for floral displays, was thronged, and the elegance and elaborateness of the designs, contributed by several of the leading florists of the two cities, was the subject of much and gratified comment.

A bridal canopy, the ground work of which was smilax and the framework of Puritan and La France roses and yellow carnations attracted attention. Beneath it stood a frie Dieu of white and red carnations. Opposite was a fire place, the grate of which was filled with red carnations, while the mantel piece was banked with the new Duchess of Albany roses. The bridal bouquet was composed of lilies of the valley and nephetis roses, one bridemaid's boquet of peri des jarden roses, one of Papa Gautier and one of Catherine Mermet roses. Another exhibition represented a recep-tion-room. The lace curtains of the bay window of the drawing-room were almost hidden from view under an arrangement of delicate asparagus tenuissimus, smilax and La France roses. The tiling of the fireplace was represented by a beautiful arrangement of red and white carnations, while the mantel-piece was banked high with La France, Mermet, pearl, Bennett and brides roses. A centre-piece was a large cylinder composed of crocuses, palms, ferns, white, red, yellow and pink roses. This claborate floral display will be con-tinued throughout to-day and to-night, with PIANOS AND ORGANS. many additions promised. The attendance yesterday was large and fashionable, the fair sex preponderating throughout the day.

Jos. Eichbnum & Co., 48 Fifth Avenue. Jos. Eichbaum & Co., 48 Fifth Avenue. Quite marked changes have been made in this charming exhibit, under North Gallery. Portieres of bamboo strings, linked with amber beads, separate it from neighbors. An exquisite bisque statuette of a Normandie pecheur stands upon a handsome bronze pedestal at the entrance; this fisherman, holding the end of the seine net from which he has just squeezed the water, looks the picture of happiness. Bolique ware decorated, and specimens awaiting the artists' brushes, are in many dainty forms; very beautiful is the toilet and manicure set combined in one case, the backs of brushes, scapcase, etc., all of clouded amber highly polished; banner stands. easels and bookrests in gilt or gilded bronze; artists' alpinestock sketching umbrellas; broad embossed leather frames ease is and bookrests in gilt or gilded bronze; artists' alpinestock sketching umbrellas; broad embossed leather frames in delicate colorings for cabinet photos; various styles of the art printing done by this firm; folding cases for photos, all of India silks; and that most useful of modern inventions, the "Gates' adjustable table," without which, no home is complete. By means of springs and screws, the table may be placed at any desired height; may have the top pushed over until the edge is right over the standard, that an invalid may breakfast upon it in hed at ease; or by lowering one side it becomes an easel; or in its normal position it is at will, a work or card table; it can rest flat against the wall, and take up no room. They may be had in plain or elaborate styles of Eichbaum & Co. One thing is indubitable, and that is, that every lady should possess one, for it is one of the best articles exhibited.

Lynch's Grand Opening.

Lynch's Grand Opening.

The popular store of H. J. Lynch, 428 and 440 Market street, has just received its fall line of goods. In fact, the only thing old about this establishment is that the usual low prices prevail. The stock comprises all the latest leading novelties in fall and winter dress goods, embroidered robes, Gilbert cloths, henriettas, English serges, Jamestown suitings, French cashmeres, plaids and combination stuffs. There are great bargains in guinets, black cashmeres, silks, velvets, surahs, satins and plushes.

Black all-wool cashmere of extra value, ranges from 45c, 50c, 60c and 75c to 81 per yard. On comforts, country blankets, country flannels, yarns, table damasks, napkins and sheetings, you will find bottom prices.

In ladies, gents and children's underwear, in camels' hair, Scotch wool, merioo and scarlet, they have a complete stock at the lowest prices ever offered.

The exhibition of floral beauties by John R. & A. Murdock is unsurpassed. They have taken this opportunity to show the public the exquisite splendor of their wedding decorations, including window draping in superb pink roses, smilax and asparagus; a mantle of American beauties; a fireplace of roses and carnations, with the old andirons and tiled hearth; a fine large center piece of ferns and roses, with corners in "scroll work: an exquisite bridal bouquet of orchids; lilies of the valley and bride roses, tied with ribbon, with corsage and buttonhole to match. The noted artist, James Dell, of their establishment, designed these exquisite floral conceits.

The Feature of Mechanical Hall

Is undoubtedly the Midgeley wire belt running on both the big engines driving the shafting on both sides of the building. It performed the same office at Toronto, Canada, and has oresame office at Toronto, Canada, and has created a profound impression at the Paris Exposition, representing America against the world on belt and winning the race. The advantages of this belt are that it effects great reduction in the loss of power, that it is not affected by climate or weather, that no tightener is required, that it possesses absolute uniformity of weight and can be shifted without loss of time to a factory. At a prominent stand next to Roes' engine fullest particulars can be obtained.

A Very Important Matter to Persons Needing Spectacles.

The expert opticians, Messrs. Gilch & Mannion, in charge of "The International Optical Company's" display in the west gallery, are without doubt most proficient in their line, as the thousands they have treated will testify. Persons go sway happy every day who had already given up all hope of deriving further benefit from glasses. These skillful opticians accurately test the sight, furnishing only such glasses as will best remedy the defects in each individual case. Consultation free. These tured by Bair & Gazzam, limited, No. 86 Third and No. 81 Second avenues, and exhibited just opposite the main entrance in Mechanical Hall, are perhaps the most novel and finely fluished machinery in that building...

Parties familiar with machinery will be interested in seeing them in operation.

THE STRIKING FEATURE

Ot J. C. Grogan's Opening A SOUVENIR OF THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

The marvelous vase of the Louchet ware, which took the prizes over all competitors at the Paris Exhibition, is so beyond anything ever seen here that one involuntarily holds the breath. This vase, No. 4521 in the Paris catalogue, stands some three and a half feet high, the base, a square of cream and white veined Mexican onyx, with beavy gold-plated carved feet; the standard in the same elaborate gold work seems to resemble a wide flaring bell, upon which rests the urn, or bowl of the vase. The ground work is a bluish white, toned of into cream or ivory. The picture on one side represents three cupids disporting themselves in the air, two of them dropping flowers from a basket, fit only for such gods, while the central or third waves aloft the torch of hymen, the messenger dove watching for the minute in which he will be sent to the fair "ladye" upon whom their thoughts are centered; turning the vase upon its swivel concealed in the gold bell, the cupids and dove are found playing all kinds of pranks like the tricksy spirits they are, around the "ladye" as she half reclines on the flower-strewn ground. Above the bowl on which are depicted these two exquisite scenes, rises the long sweeping neck of the vase, with its double curvature. Here begins an entirely different mode of ornamentation; these are panels of applied gold leaf, growing from the base up, alternating with those pendant, on the principle of stalagmites and stalactites. Those like stalagmites are in scrolls and floriated designs, like finest etchings, and are on the cream-tinted ground; the stalactites stand out boldly in truits and flowers on a dense white ground—above is a heavy collar of gold alternately dull and bright, supporting the flaring top of vase. Two Amphitryons serve as handles. The gold work of the standard, the rim, the handles, is first of solid bronze, of superb workmanship, with heavy plating of gold, that a century hence will be as bright as to-day. Louchet, a Parisian by birth, has his factory in Paris, and has created a revolu

Mellor & Hoene, 77 Fifth Avenue.

A splendid opportunity is given at this fine exhibit to examine the renowned Hardman pianos, which are favorites with both amateurs and professionals. Of massive construction, grand tone, perfect action and the faculty of "staying in tune," the Hardman pianos have only to be seen and heard to carry conviction of their value and desirability. The Krakauer pianos, too, have a large popularity, as have also the Kimbalis; indeed, all of these makes have their strong adherents; only those who don't know a fine instrument when they see it, could feel anything but satisfaction in looking could feel anything but satisfaction in looking could feel anything but satisfaction in looking at these superior planes.

Palace, Chase and Chicago cottage organs carry themselves bravely in their branch, and are delicious examples of what may be accomplished in reed instruments. The Æolian organ, though a "reed organ" too, belongs to a different category, and is a class to itself—as unlike anything else, it is played either by the keyboard or by moving the pedals or bellows with the feet alone. A goodly array, and one that is one of the most highly valued in the building.

Dabbs' Portraits.

Visitors to the Art Gallery will do well to critically examine the faces of our prominent men which are collected here. The draping of Mr. William Thaw and Captain Jones' portraits tell its own sad story. The comfort of having such truthful, speaking likenesses remains for consolation to friends and relatives.

A BROKER IN GREAT TROUBLE.

If Convicted as Indicted, He May Serve the State for Ten Years.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] NEW YORK, October 4.-The grand jury has indicted Alfred Carr, a broker, for grand larceny in the first degree, and Detective Sergeant Von Gerichten, of the district attorney's office, is looking for him with a bench warrant for his arrest. Carr is the broker who invited his customers to see him set sail from Hoboken for Europe, June 22, and who left the affairs of his office in such condition that within 24 hours after his departure, those very same customers were clamoring for settlements on his return. did return in September, but he landed from the steamship Werra, at Hoboken, and went to his home in Orange, N. J., said to be owned by his mother. Since then it is said he has hugged the Jersey shore of the North river, and has not ventured into the invited into the jurisdiction of New York.

It was Carr's practice, it is alleged, to accept deposits for his customers to be in-vested in stocks, pretending to execute them by telephone through a broker on the floor of the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange, but no actual purchases were made. The complainants against Carr before the grand jury were John Austin Yates, of Scarborough, Westchester county, who charged that Carr appropriated $4,666 66 of his money, and Edward S. Wanamaker, who lost $1,000 that he entrusted to Carr. If Carr is caught, extradited, tried and convicted he may be sentenced to State. and convicted, he may be sentenced to State prison for ten years.

PRINCE BISMARCK, his characteris-tife and methods of work are described by Fred-eric Sanburn in to-morrow's DISPATCH.

have the bad habit of neglecting to pay their tailor bills. If you desire
